

Bob McMahon (left), Ralph D. Mershon Professor of History, stands with Klaus Larres (right), professor of contemporary history and international affairs at the University of Ulster in Northern Ireland. Larres, the former holder of the Henry A. Kissinger Chair in Foreign Policy at the Library of Congress, gave a lecture at the Mershon Center as part of the Diplomatic History Speaker Series organized by Bob McMahon.

Klaus Larres, professor of contemporary history and international affairs at the University of Ulster in Northern Ireland, gave a talk titled, "The U.S. and the 'United States of Europe': A Comparison of the Cold War and the Post-Cold War Years" as part of the Mershon Center Diplomatic History Speaker Series.

After his lecture on "The U.S. and the 'United States of Europe': A Comparison of the Cold War and the Post-Cold War Years," Klaus Larres fielded questions from Mershon affiliates (seated from left to right) Peter Hahn, professor and chair of the Department of History, Bob McMahon, Ralph. D. Mershon Professor of History, Mitchell Lerner, associate professor of history at The Ohio State University-Newark, and Georges Tamer, M.S. Sofia Chair in Arabic Studies.

Klaus Larres participated in an afternoon seminar with graduate students of Bob McMahon, Ralph D. Mershon Professor of History, and Mershon affiliated faculty. Pictured from left to right are Klaus Larres, professor of contemporary history and international affairs at the University of Ulster in Northern Ireland, Ann Sealy, graduate student in the department of history, and Carole Fink, Humanities Distinguished Professor of History. Larres visited the Mershon Center on April 12, 2010 as part of the Diplomatic History Speaker Series organized by Bob McMahon.